I. My first International Project: Catholic Ethicists on HIV/AIDS prevention

In 2002, Michael Buckley, Director of the Jesuit Institute at BC, gave Jon Fuller and me $10,000 to respond to HIV Prevention crisis in the church: the stalemate over ABCs being accepted by RC

We invited two senior moralists from UK and Ireland: Kevin Kelly and Enda McDonagh to attend and plan a book.

Day 1..... WE wanted to look at the entire world through the lens of HIV

Looking at the world: A Trinitarian contemplation of the world in a time of HIV/AIDS

In All its particularity: a Case from each contributor: what was specific about the obstacles to HIV prevention in each part of the world

A case that highlights why there are obstacles to HIV prevention strategies

A very Jesuit method : Casuistry

Day 2. Kevin Kelly asked should we assign topics... (women, children, pregnancy, gays, teenagers

I was more interested in finding out what indeed would be the responses to our own question of providing a case.

An argument. Eventually I won, but I realized that we ended up respecting subsidiarity: Particularity, the local, very incarnational and a certain abandon

I think this is a very Jesuit stance

II. A dinner in Rome, 2002, an idea.... 2006: 400 Moralists 52 countries

Porticus proposal: a book versus a dinner...

WHY do Jesuits like meetings??? Meeting face to face. A value, what's this spirituality? Yet we do it all the time: networking: like the visitation. Is there something about a spirituality that's very contemplative?

Jesuit Friendship: Ricci, Xavier... Cultivating friendship

A committee of diversity: though 3 SJs and competency

Option for the poor: universality

Jesuit Hospitality

First international... 56 Jesuits of the

Frank hosted the Jesuit dinner
